

Walk About Survey

Walk About Survey is an interactive strategy that involves the full group in order to generate new ideas. This is ideal when the level of understanding about a topic varies from novice to advanced.

1. Think of one form of data your district collects about or from its students.
2. Walk around and share your information with others.
3. Try to gather and remember as many pieces of information as possible without writing anything down.
4. When time is called, go back to your seat and write as many pieces of data schools/districts collect about and from their students.
